Brand New Book  Print on Demand .The History Lesson - A New PlayThe History Lesson is a political play which exposes, through dramatization of a teacher/student relationship, the "behind the scenes" aspects of the wealthy elite (Bilderberg Group et. al.) planning, executing and manipulating "globalization" and the propaganda that is instilled in the American psyche. High school senior Scott flunks his History final because he writes of his researched truth instead of what was covered in the class: traditional, conventional and accepted truths about history which are slanted by the rich victors who write history. This causes great tension between his teacher, Mr. Pence, and himself, as well as his father and himself. With the recent death of Scotts mother and his inability to accept and move on, Scott is caught in a life he considers "bullshit lies". The drama of the relationships that unfolds depicts the harsh reality of today: economic hardship, the limitations of independent thinking, and the disconnect between the way artists think and the way the rest of the world thinks. The final act of suicide is tragic and surprising; much more about grief than ideological struggles. Even as his girlfriend Gabrielle understands his grief, she cannot help him move through it, and in the end, her love is not enough. A relevant, timely and passionate drama about the wakening of open minds, the rigidness of closed minds and the confused state of our world today. Mr. Pence does open his mind, does in fact re-grade Scotts paper giving him an A, because he takes Scott seriously enough to investigate his ideas. Scotts father remains dogmatically in the propaganda of the contrived and fabricated mainstream news and information. The History...
